

Social Studies 11 Explorations Course 2022-2023

Course Synopsis: Social Studies 11 will offer opportunities to ‘explore’ a variety of Social Studies senior elective course offerings while still covering the Curricular and Core Competencies. In this course you will be learning to use Social Studies inquiry processes and skills to ask questions, gather, interpret, and analyze ideas, and communicate findings and decisions about our world and our shared history.

Goals:

The BC Social Studies curriculum contributes to students’ development as educated citizens through the achievement of the following goals.

Students are expected to

- develop the competencies needed for participation in a democratic society: considering multiple perspectives, respecting different values and points of view, gathering, and critically analyzing information, making informed decisions, and effectively communicating their views
- develop an understanding of the connections between the past, present, and future and the people, events, and trends that have shaped the development and evolution of societies, especially our own. A complete understanding of Canada’s past and present includes developing an understanding of the history and culture of Canada’s Indigenous peoples.
- develop an understanding of the interaction between humans and the environment, the impact of the physical environment on the development of human societies and cultures, and the impact of humans on the environment — understanding these interactions involves developing spatial awareness about geophysical features and human impacts
- develop an understanding of the rights and responsibilities of citizenship and the democratic system of government, including how decisions are made at the individual, group, local, provincial, and national levels, and how to get involved in the political process and express their opinions effectively
- develop an understanding of how economic systems work and their place in an interconnected global economy so they are aware of the interactions between political, environmental, and economic decisions, and the trade-offs involved in balancing different interests.

Rationale:

The main purpose of the Social Studies curriculum is to develop graduates who have the knowledge, skills, and competencies to be active, informed citizens.

An informed citizen understands key historical, geographical, political, economic, and societal concepts, and how these different factors relate to and interact with each other. Students cannot gain this understanding passively through a broad survey of topics and or by receiving knowledge from authoritative sources. Students must build deep understandings and create their own knowledge through investigations into interesting, open-ended questions, debating and discussing historical and contemporary issues, and developing and supporting their own hypotheses, solutions, and conclusions.

Social Studies offers students the opportunities to build those understandings and knowledge. It draws on topics from disciplines within the humanities and social sciences, primarily history, geography, political science, and economics, with contributions from other disciplines such as sociology, psychology, and anthropology. Uniting these disciplines is their focus on human activities, behaviours, and interactions with both other humans and the environment.

While Social Studies draws on topics from many different disciplines, the curriculum places greater emphasis on developing disciplinary thinking skills through six major thinking concepts: significance, evidence, continuity and change, cause and consequence, perspective, and ethical judgment. These thinking concepts were originally developed to outline historical thinking but have been adapted to include some of the ways that geographers, economists, and political scientists think about topics.

Students can apply these concepts in today's world of easy access to information about virtually any topic from sources around the globe. This access to information of uncertain quality and accuracy makes it more important than ever to teach students the skills needed to gather, assess, analyze, and synthesize information and ideas from multiple sources. Once students have gathered and analyzed information, they will use it to solve problems, make decisions, and communicate their ideas effectively.

Students can apply the skills they learn in Social Studies to a wide range of post-secondary programs or in future careers. The disciplines within Social Studies develop students' abilities to think analytically and solve problems. Students will have opportunities to conduct quantitative and qualitative research and learn how to collect and interpret data. They will learn to communicate their findings through a variety of methods such as written reports, oral presentations, graphics, and statistics. Studying human interactions and the relationship between humans and the environment can lead to a variety of different careers, such as ones in research, marketing, law, and public service.

Through the Social Studies curriculum, students will have opportunities to explore and better understand their own identity, perspectives, and values as well as develop the competencies that encourage active, informed citizenship. They will develop the ability to think critically, consider different perspectives and ideas with an open mind, and disagree respectfully with those who have different opinions or points of view. They will be empowered to stay informed about public policy and take action on issues important to them.

The knowledge, skills, and competencies developed throughout the Social Studies curriculum will prepare students to participate in society as responsible citizens.

Aboriginal Worldviews and Catholic Principles:

This course would also incorporate the aboriginal value of experiential learning. There is a focus on various cultures, including aboriginal culture. Prejudice, stereotypes, and discrimination are studied in a general sense. Lastly, the course will also build on faithful relationships within the Catholic religion.

Recommended Instructional Components:

Instructional Strategies:

This big ideas and essential questions that have guided the development of these social studies courses are pertinent, provocative, and ethically challenging, and require students to engage in deep and critical self-reflection, collaborative work, and discussion. Many opportunities are provided for multi-dimensional inquiry as well as hands-on activities. Students have many opportunities for self-directed learning through the critical questions and problem-based tasks, projects and assignments presented throughout the course. These instructional strategies are designed to engage students in authentic intellectual work that will have value beyond the doors of the school.

- Direct instruction
- Indirect instruction
- Demonstrations
- Interactive instruction

- Independent instruction
- Modelling
- Student creativity (portfolio, brochures, posters, presentations, etc.)
- Brainstorming
- Critical thinking
- Reading and writing
- Cooperative group work
- PowerPoint presentations
- Analysis of film and video works
- Self-checklists
- Reflections
- Analyzing case studies
- Field experiments (surveys, etc.)

Recommended Assessment Components: Ensure alignment with the Principles of Quality Assessment

Assessment Strategies:

Assessments are varied, and flexible providing opportunities for students to demonstrate their understanding in a variety of meaningful and engaging ways. Rubrics are often created together in order to provide opportunities for students to deepen their understanding of the content and to fully understand the learning outcomes. Personal and peer communication, anecdotal feedback along with self-reflection are also valuable in helping students set appropriate goals to foster an upward cycle of learning.

Formative and Summative assessments will be ongoing through clear criteria, checklists, rubrics, questions, quizzes (primarily help with understanding of the material), and unit tests. There will be ongoing peer and self-assessment.

- Peer and Self-Assessments
- Performance Assessments
- Oral Presentations
- Quizzes and Exams
- Discussion Participation
- Educational Games

Assessment and Evaluation:

Assignments	35%
Presentations/Research Project(s)	25%
Unit Tests/Quizzes	20%
Final Exam	20%

You will need:

Your Text Book(s)- refer to Learning Resources section

3 ring binder and loose leaf paper

pens - blue or black only

pencil, eraser, ruler, pencil crayons, scissors, and glue

Classroom Expectations

There is no reason why every student should not meet the expectations as written in the “G” section of the “Work Ethic Indicators” found on this page.

* Note: Teacher reserves right to make alterations to outline as he sees fit.

Explanation of Work Ethic Indicators

G

You arrive to class on time, prepared with all your supplies, notebooks, texts, and other related materials. All your work (home and in class) is completed to the best of your ability. You are making every effort to meet deadlines and due dates and are doing your best to keep your notebooks up-to-date and in good order. During class you are attentive and focused on the various tasks, assignments, and projects. You work well in individual and group situations, and you appear to be doing your best. You willingly participate and share ideas. You treat yourself, your peers, and adults with the respect inherent in the Gospel values. You display good work habits and effort in all that you do.

S

Most of the time you arrive to class on time and are prepared with all your supplies, notebooks, texts, and other related materials. Most of your work (home and in class) is completed to the best of your ability. Although you occasionally miss handing in an assignment, you are making an honest effort to meet deadlines and due dates. You usually do your best to keep your notebooks up-to-date and in good order. During class you are attentive and focused on the various tasks, assignments, and projects with only occasional lapses. You work fairly well in individual and group situations and, on most occasions, appear to be doing your best. You are willing to participate and share ideas. You treat yourself, your peers, and adults with the respect inherent in the Gospel values. You display satisfactory work habits and effort most of the time.

N

You frequently arrive unprepared for class. You are sometimes missing supplies, notebooks, texts, and other related materials. On occasion, you are reluctant to put forth the effort to keep your materials and assignments organized. Homework and assignments are often incomplete or poorly done. During class, you are sometimes unfocused and easily distracted. You participate infrequently in class discussions. You sometimes treat yourself, peers, and adults with a lack of the respect inherent in the Gospel values. Your work habits need to improve.
